The Fifth Annual Student Editorial Affairs Conference brought together a hundred college representatives from the United States, Andrea Lello and Robert J. Litowchak attended as delegates for Newark State College. The conference was held at Schilt Boy Inn, a hotel in Madison. His address was later moved out of the hotel.

The conference was presented with a plan to study, outlining the influence of the public university to the college paper—focusing on freedom of speech, panel discussions, workshops, and debates. (a) The role of the student newspaper editor is recognized by the community—the social, legal, and moral responsibilities involved in the newspaper—college relationship were covered through speeches, panel discussions, workshops, and debates. (b) The relationship of the student movement to the student newspaper press was the subject of a joint meeting of the student editors and the student newspaper staff. The role of the newspaper in the student movement was explored. (c) The discussion of alleged violations of freedom of speech and the press. The violations discussed were those which had occurred at a school where provided a factual account of the situation.

Domestic and International Affairs: The section included a briefing on the role of the government in the function and influence of the NSA, and an attempt to relate the role of the paper to significant events in the student world, nationally and internationally.

During the conference, Neal Johnston, SEAC coordinator and former editor of the University of Colorado Maestro, attended a forum where he was the editor with a speech entitled, "What Does Freedom of the Press Mean?"

As in years past, SEAC maintained a role in the conference. The program was approved by the student newspaper staff. The sections included a briefing on the role of the government in the function and influence of the NSA, and an attempt to relate the role of the paper to significant events in the student world, nationally and internationally.

The president's staff, the Dean of Students, and the Student Publication Advisor at Wayne State have established new procedures for the DAILY COLLEGIAN's handling of news events involving "major" university policy. The editors of the COLLEGIAN met with the student publication advisor to discuss the new procedures. The editors debated a speech entitled, "What Does Freedom of the Press Mean?"

In 1960, the United Nations General Assembly adopted the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Among the qualities considered essential in the development of the individual is the freedom to express one's views, to hold opinions, and to participate in the public forum. Among the rights considered essential in the development of the individual is the freedom to express one's views, to hold opinions, and to participate in the public forum. The freedom of the press is an essential part of the democratic process and is protected by the First Amendment to the United States Constitution. The right to freedom of the press is a fundamental right that is necessary for the exercise of other basic freedoms.

The student movement is a powerful force for change in society. It is a force for democracy and a force for freedom. It is a force for social justice and a force for equality. It is a force for peace and a force for justice. It is a force for progress and a force for the future. The student movement is a force for change in society. It is a force for democracy and a force for freedom. It is a force for social justice and a force for equality. It is a force for peace and a force for justice. It is a force for progress and a force for the future.

Correct Decision

The 1961 Independent National Congress of National Students' Association, the reprinted resolution that strongly urges the 1961-62 INDEPENDENT to be anti-Communist. This resolution, it seems, is the last straw that tips the balance of forces toward the HUA direction on campus. How the facts must be discussed first.

We look at the facts as they are presented by the editors and which will be published in the next issue of this publication of the INDEPENDENT.

1. Every possible effort will be made to give full and complete information of college developments and relevant developments outside the college.

2. The editor and staff shall be impartial in voicing the viewpoint of the student body, neutral in the issue of local or national politics, and non-sectarian in all questions. This principle shall be followed in all aspects of the operation of the paper.

In view of this, we must take a stand and point out some issues which we believe are important and which we think should be given attention.

New Officers

We say their ideas should be listened to. It is a fact that in the last few years, intellectual freedom through books and journals has become a reality, and the Salm-Swetchine court as HUA is no longer a problem.

What does HUA prove and accomplish? It proves that America is weak and that Communists can overawe us. It also proves that the Chairmen of the Enemy can overawe us.

The most important right of an "academic freedom" is nothing to be overborne by any "Un-American" propaganda activities in college, especially during the present period. It is vital that we present our views and have a right to our opinions.

"Academic Freedom". But we say that it is a period of over-blessed work and that no other work can be accomplished. It proves that America is weak and that the Chairmen of the Enemy can overawe us.

New Program From W.R.A.

Those women who are interested in sports will find the W.R.A. courses made to order. This year, W.R.A. has planned a series of classes, all focusing on planning a truly varied program for its members.

The scheduled winter sports courses will offer archery, softball and tennis. The spring quarter courses will be swimming and fencing. The latter two will be offered at the same time as courses in ping-pong and tennis.

The second period winter quarter W.R.A. will now again bowling. The shuffleboard and tennis courses will also be played off during this period.

Spring, along with the flowers, will bring the return of archery, softball, and proper colors in season will be the W.R.A.'s' favorite.

As you can see, the W.R.A. plans a really big year so stop and have a good time. Be sure to be devoted to you and your interests.

The Whole Child

Few events in life can equal the excitement of the first day of school. In the entire school year, September 7 not only heralded the return of the student body, but also the return of Union in an eight and ten year old girl. It was only a matter of days, however, until the girl felt at ease. Each child chose a partner or partners and was directed to the proper classroom. Once there, the children identified their names from large printed cards on bulletin boards. Seventy-five per cent recognized both first and last names of their new teacher.

In an alley any fear reaction each child was asked what he thought of school so far. The grades ranged from an uncertain "I don't know" to a list of all the things they drew pictures. Thick pencils represented "lots of new things," thin lines for "nothing," it is felt that the finger play is a means of "just playing around" while the address was felt to be "please don't mess with me.

Prolonged concentration for a six year old is limited so theｉre period of the school was then skipped around the room, but the child's lack of coordination was not a lack of coordination. This was a period when he was just learning how to hold his pencil. A test was given to see when the class was divided into groups. Each child was told to toss a bean bag back and forth. Snack time is also an important part of the class.
