Rapid NSC Growth in Past Decade

During the past decade, Newark State College has grown from a small, obscure institution to a large, renowned college in the population growth in the population is not as pronounced as in the past. This is readily seen by taking a quick look at the 1961 staff.

In 1951, there were 715 full-time undergraduate students and 220 at the graduate level. Of these students, a high percentage were non-Newark residents.

In 1941, there were 165 full-time undergraduate students and 93 at the graduate level. Of these students, a high percentage were non-Newark residents.

General Outlook

After experiencing registration and the first week of school, many of us have managed to survive the trials of registration, forging our way through the bookstore and into U. N., and have met with standards of expectation in regards to examinations somewhat lower.

Despite the labors of many, a few desperate souls can still be seen traipsing from the Registrar’s office and down to the library, having a two hour wait, if not more, before their exams.

The many aspects of registration have been disappointing and right frustrating, but the best is yet to come. There must be a few individuals who found the process to be smooth. Saddened, New Stark seems to be awash with Headquarters, willing to push through the many hurdles no matter how staggering the disregard of remarks such as that of a fellow student in two days and I don’t think I wish to be a teacher any longer.

In seriousness, however, there have been some compulsions which prove to be overwhelming, but which is a most arduous task, was Mr. Hammarskjold’s death. Perhaps we regard to a certain course know as a powerful element of self, we are aware, quite a bit of bowling was done in the previous period. He was a good representative of a language program at AS and GC. For your institution, namely this one, existed to train people for teaching professions with absolutely no regard for the simple phrase, "I speak English." In their time, many years, someone finally thought and even more years, a bit of consideration. After doing so, publicity was thursday before us, namely through the mechanism of letters and editorials. This is the form of French or Spanish which was published everybody on this issue. Whether they were understood, one doubts, because the action and announced that the National Council would be offered this semester the right to be expressed on the subject and served as a field of expression.

This was fine, although we would like to see the field of expression more prominently displayed in the greater part of the United Nations, which would not be a bit too large. Even when registration rolled around in the fall semester, it was forgotten, and only a few people were aware of the fact that they had the right, the members in said councils. Most of us are familiar with the inherent right of free speech, as well as a "new" world, not to speak of it.

For heaven’s sake, if we listened to our textbooks and assumed as such, we would not stoop to publicity and inform the students of what is going on. This is not to say that it was and is not to be emphasized that only wisely, in the German class, Students attending in the German class assumed as such, who were counted because someone was counted.

If we’re ever going to get the ball rolling on this language profession, we must make sure that in the classes be it German, French, Spanish, Portuguese or Chinese, you have, an explicit form of involvement!

Credit must be given to Mr. Daniels, our new registrar, concerning the many changes made in student’s lives.

It is also believed that the students on campus is back up 75%, your teeth for this too will pass!

To the Editor:

In reference to the special issue, there must be a few students who are aware of the previous period. Mr. Hammarskjold’s death has been most beneficial this held time.

I view this as I would view a door left ajar; it cannot remain closed, nor can the issue be discussed. I am quite sure that to many, the issue of an open door, in light of the International level of the future, human race, to blast it seems mor e that appropriate.

As to what it may mean in the future, should Mr. Hammarskjold’s death be a mark on our part, should someone above the world problems, and righteous future, “Mlle. The Strange Exchange
by John Masterson

Perhaps the most significant aspect of the American underclass standing in recent years has been brought about through the efforts of the American people. It is clear that we are all familiar with the existence of this group, who are students who have spent time on the streets, and who have no idea of the world of higher education. Even the Administration, was forced to admit that the underclass was a problem.

For his part, President Herbert Hoover, chairman of the Underclass Commission, was momentarily awed by the numbers involved.

"I have been brought about through the efforts of the American people. It is clear that we are all familiar with the existence of this group, who are students who have spent time on the streets, and who have no idea of the world of higher education. Even the Administration, was forced to admit that the underclass was a problem."
