Survey Reading For Educables

The main topic of discussion at the November 15 meeting of the Government Reading consultants at the college was based on the interests of students. The group has been grouped for a special study based on the question, 'How can reading be taught to educable mentally retarded children?'

Evelyn Notte, Vice-president; Ernestine Pryor, Secretary; and Adele Iwanski, Treasurer; Emily Giordano and Ginny Leonhardt are acting as a constitution and picking a design for the sorority pin. All the members of Newark State's Hi-Los.

Joe Simons, George Mischiola, Rhoda Straus and Janet Williams are demonstrating a new way of some are co-editors of Kivkie-NOAA, the brand-new weekly student newspaper established to keep students informed of college events.

Nocturne in Snow' IFS Dance Theme

The children were selected for the group regardless of whether or not they belong to a sorority or fraternity. Tickets will be sold. The dance is semi-formal, open to all students and faculty members. The films will be shown at regular times, with a break at the end of the runs. The short film offers one of the most stimulating and colorful mediums in the entire motion picture field. Many of the greats of the screen have worked in this field producing some of the best techniques. There is no end to the excitement and the quality of selection to choose from. The short film will take place in the Little Theatre of the Student's Center Building.

Choose Directors, For 'College Center'

Mr. Everett N. Howe, faculty advisor for the new college center; will be administering the Planning and Development Committee on November 1, to discuss a method of organization for the new college center.

A tentative board of directors was chosen. Eventually this board will be composed of student representatives from the recognized constituent groups. The representatives to be appointed by Dr. Howe, will also be a part of the board. It is hoped that teachers will alter their program of instruction in accordance with the findings of this research committee.

Girls Organize New Sorority To Accommodate Increased Enrollment

The first new sorority to be formed in eighteen years has been born on the campus of Newark State and its members have christened it "Phi Sigma Lambda." The reasons for this new sisterhood are simple enough. Apparently certain girls in the sophomore class realized that because of the steadily increasing enrollment, present sororities could not accommodate as great a percentage of the student body as they were once able to do. This created a problem for the sororities and the students alike. The sororities were forced, because of overcrowding, to be extremely selective in the girls they bid in and thus, to exclude many girls who would have been worthwhile members of any sorority.

Another problem that had to be met was the idea of integrated and non-sectarian sororities. Although the effort has been made by other sisterhoods to have a thoroughly mixed group, the results have usually been disappointing. Thus, Phi Sigma Lambda, formed with this goal in mind, is thoroughly integrated and non-sectarian as can be seen by a glance at its list of members.

Nocturne in Snow

"Nocturne in Snow" is the theme of the Inter-fraternity Council for its annual dance to be held December 28 at the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark.

The dance, which is semi-formal, is open to all students of the college regardless of whether or not they belong to a sorority or fraternity. Tickets will be sold at the door of the Tudor Room for $1.00 per couple.

Joe Simons, president of the I.F.S.C., announced that the band to be featured at the dance is "The Glo-Tones, I.C.C.G."

Due to the length of running time and the difficulty involved in booking full length films without definite dates, short features and serials will be shown in charge of making posters, Vincent Meola, Anita Megaro and Shelley Unger. Ticket sales; Adele Iwanski and Evelyn Notte, program committee; Billy Gibson and Joe Donn in charge of publicity.

The short film offers one of the most stimulating and colorful mediums in the entire motion picture field. Many of the greats of the screen have worked in this field producing some of the best techniques. There is no end to the excitement and the quality of selection to choose from.
Innocents Abroad

by Pat Perrelli ’61

(With apologies to Washington Irving, sophomores and readers, the author suggests that the reading should be done slowly, with proper expression, and without being interrupted.)

Well, you should’ve seen us Friday, me and my friend Sadie. We hopped on a train in New York, and I guess the boy did we look arty. We looked that way, real chic, believe me. So we were just looking at all the scenes of art and naturally we had to get a bit excited.

We left early, because then we’d get there early and then we could see the picter quick and go see a flicker, “My Pal Joey” or “Les Girls” maybe. We went by train. Well that was a blast. I’d been on a train since seventh grade, so I wasn’t too worried. Well the train was nice but the ferry was nicer. Boy, there are so many wonderful things about New York, you see just pretty much like the picters you see all the time in the Sunday paper. We could even see the Statue of Liberty. We waved at it; we sat on the deck and had a ride back and forth a couple times but as usual they say, and we had to flught.

Well, here we were in New York, the biggest city in the world. Two little people in such a big city. If we didn’t get swallowed up by the crowd we’d think the world is so big. You never get to feeling at all confined because you’re not, unless you’re not the city, too, and such crazy taxi cab drivers, you have to begin to question the stores. You can get anything in them—and real cheap but they have a 3% sales tax that doesn’t seem too bad. It’s not a big dollar. The man that lives next door works in New York and he says it’s not all that bad. In fact, whenever I wanted something to ask him and he could get it for me cheaper.

Well, we had to get a subway up to the museums. Any subway Sandy said knew something about New York because she seen “Beau James” eight times and all the other jokes. He made a joke on the “Manhattan Towers,” so she shouldn’t know she didn’t.

Well, miracles don’t happen every day. Yes, an awfully big city and we were so small, and New Yorkers aren’t too friendly, and Sadie got “Beau James” confused with Jesse James and her “Manhattan Towers,” so we’ll never find out those picters.

The Letter project

by Pat Berlinghoff ’61

As I walk through the halls, I can’t help being impressed by the enthusiasm and ingenuity shown in the posters the campaign managers have hung on the walls.

Actually the process is quite simple. A little thought, a little effort, and a little art knowledge can make your poster quite artistic.

Your purpose for making the poster will generally give you ideas. There are three classifications: Satisfactory, Not Satisfactory, or Very Satisfactory whereby the system of employees will be eliminated. The marks should determine whether clever and thoughtful work has been performed and if the student is able to connect the past with today. Teaching methods are slowly changing to become more flexible and less formal, and I believe the grading of marks should be next. Let’s not have AUTOMATION in our thinking.

Sincerely,

Lois Finkeinstein ’61

Term Project

The topic for this term project will be determined by the space in which it will be placed. It can be objective or non-objective. The type of material we use for the poster depends upon the purpose for making the poster.

Nu Sigma to Discuss "Jr. Practicum"

"Junior Practicum" will be the topic discussed by Carl J. Larsen, associate professor of English at New York University, during the meeting of the New Jersey Student News Association (JESA).

Mr. Larsen, who teaches at New York University, will also speak on the future of colleges and universities and the role they play in preparing students for careers.

The meeting is open to all JESA members and will be held in the JESA headquarters in Newark.
A Winning Basketball Team Forecasted

From all reports given, it appears as though N.S.T.C. will be a power among small colleges this coming basketball season.

Coach Errington will have a running, fighting team. The returning last year squad forms the nucleus and the newcomers offer valuable assistance. The team appears to have height, speed and shooting ability. It will be up to the players what the season's outcome will be. A good team is predicted, and it will probably be so in the beginning of the season. It is hoped that the lag which occurred late in the season in past years will not happen to this team.

For the first time in many years, the coach of Newark's basketball team will be faced with the problem of having to cut candidates from the team. There are only 12 places open, and there are about 20 energetic candidates. The players who are not chosen for the team will still be able to play as alternates.

With the large amount of men out for the team and with the extensive and worthwhile practices they have encountered, it really looks like a winning team this year. Let's all get out to the games and give the team our support. Should "Outsiders" Be Allowed to Play?

The fact has been brought out that a number of "outsiders" have been playing with the basketball team which supposedly represents our college. Since the team is not an organization which the college sponsors, there is no objection to these men playing with our college. However, when the touch football team was organized by a group of young men in this college, it was for the primary objective of having the ground work for a tackle football team next year. How can this goal be achieved if men from this college, willing to play and needing the valuable experience are put "out in the cold" by these outsiders who are taking their places in the field?

Odd Bounces

Newark State may start a "Lettermen's Club." The members would be composed of all those holding Varsity letters.

The Old Philosopher: Concerning the renaming of the college to Union State; would you be happier if its name were Sarsaparilla?

...Scoop!! We have beaten all other papers to this story. Rumor has it that the college is for the primary objective of having the team work. From the Coaches' Bench

In the last year or two I have noted that so many teams seem to be having trouble with the "man-to-man" set up. The predecessor to this defense is called the "zone defense" in preference to a "man-to-man" set up, and in this manner is forced out of a basket, as indicated by the diagram.

Basketball Team Conditions for New Gym

by Phil Dwyer

The long awaited move to the new gym is everyone's hope for the season. With the basketball coach, this move cannot be too soon. With only one game being played on a large court, the team can be in better shape after following the rigorous training program established by their new coach, Mr. Joseph Errington.

With the gymnasium opening next week, one would expect to give you a few hints on things to watch for at the start of the season.

The team has certain plays for defending their basket and scoring on the other team. Watch the way in which the college team passes the ball and smoothly guides the ball into a position where they can overcome the defending team's strategy and sink the basket with a better chance of completing the shot.

Watch the way in which each member of the team performs his job. The team consists of a center, two forwards and two guards. Their positions on the floor may vary with different types of defensive and offensive play (although I never knew where I was supposed to go and would wander all over the court).

By the way, I wonder how many people have the same habit that I do? When cheerleaders are on the floor, I can't help watching them that I forget to yell. Give those a little voice and everyone will enjoy the game more fully.
