Dear Madam,

I have received your letter enclosing 300 Turbulles Bond. I have advanced the interest accrued on 300 McIntosh Bond to Mr. Hanley, and although there is more of rent due that will be sufficient to reimburse me I have not been able to collect it. You may therefore remit to me the balance in your hands due to that gentleman.

I shall write either to you or to Lord Mersey, as it may happen, on the subject of either Estate as matters occur. The indomitable Mr. Cornell's Horse seem disposed to dispute the claim on his policy. They seem to think the hop out altogether accidental. The remaining Instantly will I think be amply sufficient to secure the aunt to Mrs. O. There are two horses remaining on the mortgage premises for which Correll has been offered $2,500. I intend to get some land and examine them today or tomorrow in order to determine on the expediency of consenting to the sale. Oftentimes had better make an offer to do what I may consider most for her interest in relation to that debt. It is my intention to advertise again this property for sale again without delay, thinking the proposed sale for $2,500 and as soon as practicable.
