Samenfeld Cites Student Coop; Reviews Appeal Procedure

In a interview with a REFLECTOR reporter this week, Dr. Herbert Samenfeld expressed the belief that parking problems on campus were gradually being eliminated this year, and the hope that students would make every attempt to follow the parking regulations.

In reviewing fines for parking violations, Dr. Samenfeld mentioned that the fine for the initial violation was $2.00. The second violation results in the placing of the violator on probation. In addition, students who fail to pay their fines are opening themselves to a probation citation. Usually, five days are permitted after the violation notice is issued for the student to pay the fine. If payment is not made within that time, the student will receive an admonition from the office of the Director of Student Personnel, advising him to pay the fine immediately. If, within five days, the student still does not pay, Dr. Samenfeld will submit the student’s name to the Director of Student Personnel, advising him to consider the appeal and decide if the facts warrant a cancellation of the summons.

Letters to the Parking Committee may be left at the main desk in Townsend Hall or in the Business Office.

In November, the Nancy Thompson Library will be closed during the weekend of the N.J.E.A. Convention—Thursday, Friday, Saturday, November 12, 13, 14, and likewise be closed for a similar period for the Thanksgiving holiday weekend—Thursday, Friday, Saturday, November 26, 27, 28. The REFLECTOR will be published on Monday, Nov. 16.

Dr. Herbert Samenfeld

NOVEMBER

1  Children’s Book Week

2  All Souls’ Day

9  American Education Week

15 Sadie Hawkins Day

22 R. S. D. P. Meeting

23 Catherine Breakskevsky (1844-1934)

29 First Sunday of Advent

30  All Seniors and Juniors who have left in this semester.

31  Last day to pay for Lecture Series Fid"s

4  Community Lecture Series/Speaker: Frederic Neff, 8:30 Little Theatre

10  Newman Club Speaker: Fr. Sokolich Subject: Birth Control 7:30

11  Veterans’ Day Junior Beet Party 6:30

12  Hotel 141 - N.J. State Teachers’ Convention; Atlantic City

14  Thanksgiving Holiday

17  Christmas Day

25  Basketball Season Opens: NSC vs. MSC at Montclair

27  Alumni Varsity Basketball game and dance 8:00

29  Cooperative Program for the Homeless

30  Martin Luther King, Jr. Day
Editorial

The War Against Darkness

The College Bond Issue is finally off the "dreaming board" and has become a legislative reality. We have fought hard and won despite the opposition of the last hour opposition the proponents of which were not above resorting to distortion of the truth and outright lies.

The news for progress at Newark State is much more than a year old.

We have come a long way from the dark days of 1951 when the state master plan called for the dissolution of Newark State Teachers College and the allocation of certain facilities to Montclair. Time and the votes of the state legislature today is due, in large, to the efforts of Dr. Wilkins who fought tooth and nail with state officials in order to "save our institution." Questions raised by President Wilkins lead to a reconsideration of the old master plan and in 1952 the drawing up of the present master plan which, in the area of favorability to Newark State is a far cry from proposed dissolution.

To the Editor;

Without attempting to plead the case of either side, I feel the distinction drawn in Art Holde's Editorial of October 23 entitled "The President and Steel!" deserves objective clarification, especially as Holde's uninformed position that the President's role in the steel dispute can be breezily written off as the patronage required of him in exchange for campaign donations is a narrow one.

We can dispense with the issue of campaign contributions as a one-sided affair simply by acknowledging that the labor interests in this country today are no less important than the corporate, business interests, besides the defeat of a presidential candidate, unless we have a candidate bearing the name of Harrison or Rockefeller, we cannot hope to have competent people run for national offices, which is probably the wise thing to do.

The President's handling of the steel strike to date has had the general support of the American public. The following, record attests to his unassailable position. These steps were taken in this order:

1. In line with the administration's firm policy of avoiding involving private business, labor and management were encouraged to settle the dispute with haste among themselves.

2. As the strike dragged on, a Fact-finding Board was appointed; this Board reported to the President that both sides of the issues involved "impossible," the implication being that settlement was hindered by self-interest on both sides.

3. The Board's findings prompted the President to order both sides to return to work.

4. Both sides failed to carry out this order; the only recourse then, was to invoke the Taft-Hartley injunction which calls for resumption of work for 80 days. Both sides are expected to come to a compromise.

It seems that Charles and Eduardo Polo, the physical education teachers from Sweetness Town- ship, Long Island, left their jobs to seek out new lands where they could not be influenced by coaching contracts. They also wished to check up on the facts printed in Why TARZAN CAN'T Read. Yes, oh, yes, I am in a back of a classroom reading the book by the same title, a physical education trades journal when what do I notice? Physical Education Teacher Brady Wilde of LOWELL HOOKANACKY to Teach Football. Why do they care to run Slots From Go-Back? The title nearly took up the whole damn book.

"Are you Lowell Dromas?" I asked. "Why are you wearing masks?" I asked.

"Because we must shield us from conformity."

"What?"

I am trying out for a new production of A Face In The Crowd."

"My word!"

"Actually, we're physical education teachers." "What do you wish?"

"Why are you wearing masks?"

"Because we must shield us from conformity."

"What?"

I am trying to compete for the million dollar "This Land of Opportunity." I wonder much of this opportunity they are selling for $1.6 an hour.

Letters

To the Editor;

October 28, 1959

"The President and Steel!" deserves objective clarification. The President's role in the steel dispute can be breezily written off as the patronage required of him in exchange for campaign donations is a narrow one.

To the Editor;

October 28, 1959

With respect to all night physical education teachers from Sweetness Town-ship, Long Island, left their jobs to seek out new lands where they could not be influenced by coaching contracts. They also wished to check up on the facts printed in Why TARZAN CAN'T Read.

"Are you Lowell Dromas?" Why are you wearing masks?" I asked.

"Because we must shield us from conformity."

"What?"

I am trying out for a new production of A Face In The Crowd."

"My word!"

"Actually, we're physical education teachers." "What do you wish?"

"Why are you wearing masks?"

"Because we must shield us from conformity."

"What?"

I am trying to compete for the million dollar "This Land of Opportunity." I wonder much of this opportunity they are selling for $1.6 an hour.

UN Admittance of Red China

The CCU club of this college is holding a debate on the merits of admitting Red China to the United Nations.

In talking privately with some of these people, I discovered that all of those I talked to definitely felt we should not admit Red China to the U.N. I heard their arguments and they were the same that are printed in all our newspapers. We are pure, good and pious. They are evil, ungodly, and naturally bad.

We should add that Richard Nixon is a cruel, vicious, unscrupulous person seeking personal agrandizement at the cost of anything or anybody.

If he is elected President of the country, Europe will sadly comment, that we won our independence from England before we were quite ready for it.

GUTS

by J. H. Oderman

The other day I was sitting in back of a class. I don't know what they're calling it this term. They change it when someone new teaches it. It started out as "Business English" but they are now calling it "The Role of the Teacher in the Industrial Life of a Typical United States Community With Respect to All-Night Physical Education." Oh yes, I am in a back of a classroom reading the book by the same title, a physical education trade journal when what do I notice? Physical Education Teacher Brady Wilde of LOWELL HOOKANACKY to Teach Football. Why do they care to run Slots From Go-Back? The title nearly took up the whole damn book.

It seems that Charles and Eduardo Polo, the physical education teachers from Sweetness Town-ship, Long Island, left their jobs to seek out new lands where they could not be influenced by coaching contracts. They also wished to check up on the facts printed in Why TARZAN CAN'T Read.

"Are you Lowell Dromas?" I asked. "Why are you wearing masks?" I asked.

"Because we must shield us from conformity."

"What?"

I am trying out for a new production of A Face In The Crowd."

"My word!"

"Actually, we're physical education teachers." "What do you wish?"

"Why are you wearing masks?"

"Because we must shield us from conformity."

"What?"

I am trying to compete for the million dollar "This Land of Opportunity." I wonder much of this opportunity they are selling for $1.6 an hour.

UN Admittance of Red China

The CCU club of this college is holding a debate on the merits of admitting Red China to the United Nations.

In talking privately with some of these people, I discovered that all of those I talked to definitely felt we should not admit Red China to the U.N. I heard their arguments and they were the same that are printed in all our newspapers. We are pure, good and pious. They are evil, ungodly, and naturally bad.

We should add that Richard Nixon is a cruel, vicious, unscrupulous person seeking personal agrandizement at the cost of anything or anybody.

If he is elected President of the country, Europe will sadly comment, that we won our independence from England before we were quite ready for it.
 November 6, 1959

The Norms Drama Guild has chosen "Robson's Choice." The play was written by Harold Brighouse.

"Robson's Choice" is set in the late nineteenth century in Pennsylvania. The action is centered around the decision of a young woman, Mary Follett, known as "Robson's Choice," who must choose between marriage and her career.

In her position here at Newark State, Mr. Agee is responsible for the general administration of the College Center, including the parking area to the classroom building. This was the news revealed at Monday night's meeting of the campus nature club. The purpose of making this news, explained Joseph Martin, president of the club, was to enable the students of Newark State to get from the parking area to the classroom buildings without having to go through the area where construction of the new science building is being carried on, or to detour all the way around to the front of Townsend Hall.

The Author and his Characters.

To say that A Death in the Family is excellent, however, is not to say that it is without fault. For one thing, there are times when one seems to lose contact with the characters of the book. As an example, take Mary Follett, the wife who is left a widow by the accident. She is a Catholic by religion, and it is obvious to anyone reading the book that a great deal of the author's sympathy and respect are extended to Mary. Hers is the greatest tragedy and burden, the one that she, more than anyone else, must go on living.

What Mr. Agee does, does not pretend to be able to answer questions that confront her, that she sometimes seems quite prigish, and I'm sure Mr. Agee never intended this. Even as an excommunicated Catholic, I have a feeling for Catholic principles that he couldn't bring himself to making a Catholic a fool who went through life proclaiming the dogma that a certain wise man is not to say that it is without fault. For one thing, there are times when one seems to lose contact with the characters of the book. As an example, take Mary Follett, the wife who is left a widow by the accident. She is a Catholic by religion, and it is obvious to anyone reading the book that a great deal of the author's sympathy and respect are extended to Mary. Hers is the greatest tragedy and burden, the one that she, more than anyone else, must go on living.

What Mr. Agee does, does not pretend to be able to answer questions that confront her, that she sometimes seems quite prigish, and I'm sure Mr. Agee never intended this. Even as an excommunicated Catholic, I have a feeling for Catholic principles that he couldn't bring himself to making a Catholic a fool who went through life proclaiming the dogma that a certain wise man is not to say that it is without fault. For one thing, there are times when one seems to lose contact with the characters of the book. As an example, take Mary Follett, the wife who is left a widow by the accident. She is a Catholic by religion, and it is obvious to anyone reading the book that a great deal of the author's sympathy and respect are extended to Mary. Hers is the greatest tragedy and burden, the one that she, more than anyone else, must go on living.

What Mr. Agee does, does not pretend to be able to answer questions that confront her, that she sometimes seems quite prigish, and I'm sure Mr. Agee never intended this. Even as an excommunicated Catholic, I have a feeling for Catholic principles that he couldn't bring himself to making a Catholic a fool who went through life proclaiming the dogma that a certain wise man is not to say that it is without fault. For one thing, there are times when one seems to lose contact with the characters of the book. As an example, take Mary Follett, the wife who is left a widow by the accident. She is a Catholic by religion, and it is obvious to anyone reading the book that a great deal of the author's sympathy and respect are extended to Mary. Hers is the greatest tragedy and burden, the one that she, more than anyone else, must go on living.

What Mr. Agee does, does not pretend to be able to answer questions that confront her, that she sometimes seems quite prigish, and I'm sure Mr. Agee never intended this. Even as an excommunicated Catholic, I have a feeling for Catholic principles that he couldn't bring himself to making a Catholic a fool who went through life proclaiming the dogma that a certain wise man is not to say that it is without fault. For one thing, there are times when one seems to lose contact with the characters of the book. As an example, take Mary Follett, the wife who is left a widow by the accident. She is a Catholic by religion, and it is obvious to anyone reading the book that a great deal of the author's sympathy and respect are extended to Mary. Hers is the greatest tragedy and burden, the one that she, more than anyone else, must go on living.

What Mr. Agee does, does not pretend to be able to answer questions that confront her, that she sometimes seems quite prigish, and I'm sure Mr. Agee never intended this. Even as an excommunicated Catholic, I have a feeling for Catholic principles that he couldn't bring himself to making a Catholic a fool who went through life proclaiming the dogma that a certain wise man is not to say that it is without fault. For one thing, there are times when one seems to lose contact with the characters of the book. As an example, take Mary Follett, the wife who is left a widow by the accident. She is a Catholic by religion, and it is obvious to anyone reading the book that a great deal of the author's sympathy and respect are extended to Mary. Hers is the greatest tragedy and burden, the one that she, more than anyone else, must go on living.

What Mr. Agee does, does not pretend to be able to answer questions that confront her, that she sometimes seems quite prigish, and I'm sure Mr. Agee never intended this. Even as an excommunicated Catholic, I have a feeling for Catholic principles that he couldn't bring himself to making a Catholic a fool who went through life proclaiming the dogma that a certain wise man is not to say that it is without fault. For one thing, there are times when one seems to lose contact with the characters of the book. As an example, take Mary Follett, the wife who is left a widow by the accident. She is a Catholic by religion, and it is obvious to anyone reading the book that a great deal of the author's sympathy and respect are extended to Mary. Hers is the greatest tragedy and burden, the one that she, more than anyone else, must go on living.

What Mr. Agee does, does not pretend to be able to answer questions that confront her, that she sometimes seems quite prigish, and I'm sure Mr. Agee never intended this. Even as an excommunicated Catholic, I have a feeling for Catholic principles that he couldn't bring himself to making a Catholic a fool who went through life proclaiming the dogma that a certain wise man is not to say that it is without fault. For one thing, there are times when one seems to lose contact with the characters of the book. As an example, take Mary Follett, the wife who is left a widow by the accident. She is a Catholic by religion, and it is obvious to anyone reading the book that a great deal of the author's sympathy and respect are extended to Mary. Hers is the greatest tragedy and burden, the one that she, more than anyone else, must go on living.

What Mr. Agee does, does not pretend to be able to answer questions that confront her, that she sometimes seems quite prigish, and I'm sure Mr. Agee never intended this. Even as an excommunicated Catholic, I have a feeling for Catholic principles that he couldn't bring himself to making a Catholic a fool who went through life proclaiming the dogma that a certain wise man is not to say that it is without fault. For one thing, there are times when one seems to lose contact with the characters of the book. As an example, take Mary Follett, the wife who is left a widow by the accident. She is a Catholic by religion, and it is obvious to anyone reading the book that a great deal of the author's sympathy and respect are extended to Mary. Hers is the greatest tragedy and burden, the one that she, more than anyone else, must go on living.

What Mr. Agee does, does not pretend to be able to answer questions that confront her, that she sometimes seems quite prigish, and I'm sure Mr. Agee never intended this. Even as an excommunicated Catholic, I have a feeling for Catholic principles that he couldn't bring himself to making a Catholic a fool who went through life proclaiming the dogma that a certain wise man is not to say that it is without fault. For one thing, there are times when one seems to lose contact with the characters of the book. As an example, take Mary Follett, the wife who is left a widow by the accident. She is a Catholic by religion, and it is obvious to anyone reading the book that a great deal of the author's sympathy and respect are extended to Mary. Hers is the greatest tragedy and burden, the one that she, more than anyone else, must go on living.

What Mr. Agee does, does not pretend to be able to answer questions that confront her, that she sometimes seems quite prigish, and I'm sure Mr. Agee never intended this. Even as an excommunicated Catholic, I have a feeling for Catholic principles that he couldn't bring himself to making a Catholic a fool who went through life proclaiming the dogma that a certain wise man is not to say that it is without fault. For one thing, there are times when one seems to lose contact with the characters of the book. As an example, take Mary Follett, the wife who is left a widow by the accident. She is a Catholic by religion, and it is obvious to anyone reading the book that a great deal of the author's sympathy and respect are extended to Mary. Hers is the greatest tragedy and burden, the one that she, more than anyone else, must go on living.
One develops a sense of pride and satisfaction in following the fortunes of one's own team, or sport's teams. During the past season our basketball team compiled an impressive 15-7 record and also gained a Conference tie with Glassboro.

Newark State started its 1958 basketball campaign in a sensational manner, reeling off nine straight victories, and gaining an early acclaim from various newspapers in the "small" college ranks.

In Jack Mott, an All-Conference selection last year, there seemed to be provided the spark that guided the former "Black Knights" to many victories. Jack played the game just as he always played it, life tale -- life, life, life, clean, and with a never say die philosophy.

This year, due to the four year eligibility ruling in the conference, Jack's varsity basketball must be limited to non-conference battles. In addition to his limited varsity play Jack takes another role, that of the success-rusher of "Big Daddy". For those not in the know, "Big Daddy" the affectionate term applied to Joe Simons, last year's rotund J, V, basketball coach. It is this observers opinion that if a part of the skills, theories and attitudes which Jack possesses, can rub off on his charges, he will have little trouble filling "Big Daddy's" shoes. (Merry Christmas.)

GOOD LUCK, JACK.

Weekly Calendar

---

November

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Date</th>
<th>Event</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>9:00 p.m</td>
<td>Wapalanne</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10:30 p.m</td>
<td>CCUN Meeting</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7:00 p.m</td>
<td>Newman Club</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7:00 p.m</td>
<td>Native American Heritage Day (parade)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7:00 p.m</td>
<td>Jr. Class Party</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12-14</td>
<td>N. J. Educational Asso, Meeting - No classes.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

Jockey's Bench

Cookie's Comments by Cookie Urth

After the sixth week of competition in the National Football League, there is an unevenness on both teams in leading the 49ers to their fifth win of the season, of their first five games. If the Bears continue to play the brand of football with two of the top teams in the conference, the Cleveland Browns and Baltimore Colts, In the underdog Browns, three times one yard from the goal line as time ran out.

38-21. The fabulous Mister Brown churned out 178 yards, which he accounted for the difference in score. In losing, however, he will have little trouble filling "Big Daddy's" shoes. (Merry Christmas.)

---

Newark State's Cheerleading Lovelies

Peté The Predictor by Pete Holt

Penn State vs. Syracuse - this should be the top game in the East this season. The versatility of the Penn State backfield will try through time of it - GEORGIA.

Mississippi vs. Chattanooga - Ole Miss will do its best to run up the score to uphold to National rating. A runaway - MISS.

Northwestern vs. Wisconsin - this game will decide the Big Ten championship. It was taken in the direction of defense.

Penn State vs. Notre Dame - this game will be as difficult as the one in 1957.

---

J. Mott To Coach JV's

4 Year Ruling Ends Playing Days

by Frank Burstein

One develops a sense of pride and satisfaction in following the fortunes of one's own team, or sport's teams. During the past season our basketball team compiled an impressive 15-7 record and also gained a Conference tie with Glassboro.

Newark State started its 1958 basketball campaign in a sensational manner, reeling off nine straight victories, and gaining an early acclaim from various newspapers in the "small" college ranks.

In Jack Mott, an All-Conference selection last year, there seemed to be provided the spark that guided the former "Black Knights" to many victories. Jack played the game just as he always played it, life tale -- life, life, life, clean, and with a never say die philosophy.

This year, due to the four year eligibility ruling in the conference, Jack's varsity basketball must be limited to non-conference battles. In addition to his limited varsity play Jack takes another role, that of the success-rusher of "Big Daddy". For those not in the know, "Big Daddy" the affectionate term applied to Joe Simons, last year's rotund J, V, basketball coach. It is this observers opinion that if a part of the skills, theories and attitudes which Jack possesses, can rub off on his charges, he will have little trouble filling "Big Daddy's" shoes. (Merry Christmas.)

GOOD LUCK, JACK.