Background Information

Acquisition

The Nancy Thompson Library acquired the collection material.

Archival Appraisal Information

No materials were deaccessioned from the collection.

Processing Information

The collection moved into the Liberty Hall Academic Center & Exhibition Hall Special Collections Research Library & Archive in August 2019.

History

Library Director Barbara Simpson began collecting institutional material in 1984. It was located on East Campus in file cabinets. It included Administrative Reports and material created by President Nathan Weiss. The collection was moved to the Nancy Thompson Library in the mid to late 1990s. By the early 2000s, the file cabinets were located in the Wynona Moore Lipman Ethnic Studies Room (named in 2003) and under the stewardship of Eleanor McKnight. On August 22, 2011, under Library Director Louis Rodriguez, the institutional materials collected by the library and 2 microfilm/fisch machines were transferred into boxes and moved to the Ice House. At that time, the collection was re-named University Archives.

Scope and Content

The collection provides the administration, faculty, and student voices. Highlights include the course catalogs, student newspapers, yearbooks, and the Nancy Thompson WWII Scrapbook Letter Collection.

Arrangement

The collection is arranged into 10 series. The descriptions and complete numbers will be updated when processing is complete.

1 – History and General Institution Profile

This Subgroup includes material that covers multiple names and locations. Miscellaneous material created before “Kean College” is arranged by the name of the school. This was done because not much early material exists. Material created after “Kean College” is found throughout the different record groups, the exception being material compiled by Donald R. Raichle for his 1980 publication From a Normal Beginning: The Origins of Kean College of New Jersey, which has been kept together. The collection includes a number of files on education in general and related to New Jersey and Newark specifically.

1.0 General

This subgroup contains papers that span multiple time periods in the school’s history. There are lists of school locations, Administrators, number of graduates, the Alma Mater, and material describing name changes. There are folders covering John Cotton Dana, author of the school motto, as well as motto copyright issues. Another folder covers the school flag at the University of Louvain, Belgium, which was destroyed by the Nazis in 1940. Summaries of the history of the school are described from multiple periods in time, including speeches and student papers. There is only one box.

1.1 Normal School, 1855-1913

At this time, the school was operated by the city of Newark. This subgroup contains mostly photocopies of clippings and typed or hand-written material likely compiled sometime after the establishment of the Normal School. A folder name may reflect only a few lines regarding its contents. Many copies are difficult to read. A few folders include notes by an unidentified person. Ideally, an effort to find the original sources may lead to better copies, depending on the condition of the originals.

1.3 New Jersey State Teachers College at Newark, 1937-1958

At this time, the school continued to be under state control, but changed the term “Normal,” to “Teachers.” There are related documents filed under 1.12: New Jersey State Teacher Colleges, because the material is related to all state teacher colleges, not specifically this institution.

1.4 Newark State College, 1958-72

In 1958 the school name changed to Newark State College. The school only offers courses of study related to education. The first year students could study Liberal Arts, without committing themselves to a teaching career, was in 1966 (evident in the 1966-67 Course Catalog). The majority of collection material is integrated into other subgroups.

4.2 Office of Institutional Research

Currently, the Office of Institutional Research supports the University's planning and decision-making through facilitating and coordinating the collection, analysis, and interpretation of institutional data in a practical, cohesive, and timely manner. The office assists the university in advancing and fulfilling its mission by providing institutional accountability data and reports to its constituents and communities. The office has an online presence at: <http://ir.kean.edu/irhome/IRHome.asp>. Fact Sheets online began in 2004 and continue through the present.

5.2 Buildings, Grounds, and Dedications

This section includes material related to buildings and grounds in Newark and Union, NJ, with hopes of expanding to other NJ and China Campuses. This subgroup includes clippings, architectural buildings, Board of Education minutes, and other papers. Currently there is no information on the Ocean County campus. Only papers concerning the development of a relationship with Wenzhou, China campus are currently in the collection. The Newark campus is arranged by date. The Union campus is initially arranged chronologically, followed by the names of buildings and places alphabetically. All photographs are in 8.2.1.
